Goats and trolls at kindergarten

Plays were the order of the day for parents and pupils of the Drayton Valley Community Kindergarten class Friday.

Children and parent helpers brought Goldilocks and The Three Bears, The Three Little Pigs and the Three Billy Goats Gruff to life before a group of parents intent as to what their children have been doing in the class.

The plays were just a small way to enable the parents to get involved with their own child's education—a major goal for the class.

The plays themselves told what had been told in the past to the parents even when they were children.

Performing for the audience were Shawn Diggins as Papa Bear in the first play, Maureen Matlock as Mama Bear, Lindsey Passy as Baby Bear and Rebecca Meunier as Goldilocks. In the second story about The Three Bears Terri Turner played Papa Bear, Jennifer Van Oord played Mama Bear, Kristen MacLock played Baby Bear and Jodi Reid played Goldilocks.

In The Three Billy Goats Gruff June Howes played the first Billy Goat, Christopher Dobransky played the second Billy Goat, David Drader played the third Billy Goat and Robbie Lauer played the Troll.

In the Three Little Pigs play Shane Willis played the first pig, Michael Hanas played the second little pig, David Regnier played the third little pig, Lindsay Passy played the mother pig, Cheryl Gottschalk played the father pig, Danny Beckett was the salesman and Cory Nelson was the Wolf.

June Howes and Robbie Lauer portray the smallest billy goat and the troll in the Three Billy Goats Gruff at the Drayton Valley Community Kindergarten.

New tendering policy planned

Drayton Valley will have a new tendering policy once the administration completes the policy manual it is working on.

To further such a move a bylaw passed in 1980 was rescinded to make way for the new policy. The move was brought before council at the request of the administration.

"It's too complicated and cumbersome," commented Mayor Bob Mayhew on the bylaw.

Councillor Jim Wolff felt the town should have something ready to replace the bylaw before rescinding it. "I don't think we should abandon this guidelines at this time until we have a new policy," he said.

Mayhew disagreed. "Obviously the indication from the administration is that it cannot be followed."

He felt that if the administration is having difficulty with the policy and are deviating from the policy then it is not acceptable.

Wolff expressed his concern over the "limbo time" between the abandonment of the policy and the adoption of a new one.

Town Manager Manny Deol explained there was a different philosophy in the town when the bylaw was passed in 1980. "We are not following to the 't' most parts of this policy," he added.

The motion to rescind the bylaw was passed with Mayor Mayhew, Councillors Ken Koskinen, Charlie Miner and Howard Olsen voting in favor and councillor Jim Wolff voting against.

Locals line up for licences even with mail-in program

Even with the mail-in program, people are still lining up to get their vehicle registrations renewed.

"We are still experiencing problems with irate customers," said Joyce Hanson, an employee in the motor vehicle department of the Drayton Valley Treasury Branch.

Customers are still coming in without insurance pink slips and are either filling them out incorrectly or not filling them out completely, causing other people in line to wait longer than necessary, Hanson said.

The mail-in date expired April 12. If you mail in your registration now you will not receive it by the April 29 deadline, she warned.

The provincial government is currently working on a scheme to solve the problem of 1.7 million people all lining up at the same time to renew their registrations. The scheme involves dividing the 1.7 million vehicle owners into 12 equal parts. So far the Solicitor General's office has not decided who will register in what month, said Tony Gronow, director of communications for the Alberta Solicitor General.

The staggered registration policy will probably commence in October, he said. Anyone wishing to get the new orange and blue lettered licence plates may pay a pro-rated fee which would be in effect until the time of their anniversary, he added.

The Solicitor General's office is currently putting together a brochure to explain the staggered registration policy. It will be distributed sometime in August, said Gronow.

School repairs underway

By Jack Morrison

Damage to floor joists caused by damp rot underneath H.W. Pickup Junior High School has been examined and repaired or is under the process of being repaired.

"The crews have seen them and would not leave anything dangerous," said George Luck, director of facility services for the County of Parkland school board.

The worst of it has been repaired, said Tom Hutton, vice-principal of H.W. Pickup. Plans are to continue throughout the rest of the building, he added.

In January, a student and chair broke through the floor in the library. The two rooms were repaired in early February.

"It was only a small little break through," said Colin Canavagh, principal.

"Once they found it was rotten they were very quick at getting it fixed," he added.

"Major damage is under individual furnaces in the classrooms, some floors have dropped five cm under furnaces. Should any furnace drop through the floor to crawl space, there is a danger a live gas pipe could break off furnace spewing gas into school," wrote George Melanka, building quality repair program (BQRP) clerk of the work.

"I wasn't aware of that. I knew there was some structural damage but not under the furnaces," said Cavanagh, referring to the five cm drop.

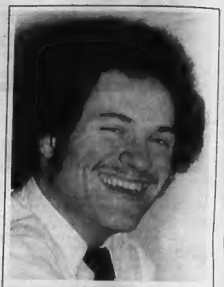
By resolution of the school board, Feb. 15 a structural engineer was hired to inspect the damage to the school and make recommendations on the necessary remedial action. The report received Feb. 28 noted to prevent further damage repairs should be carried out as soon as the frost is out of the ground and preferably prior to the first big rain storm.

"We have been advised that the joists under the H.W. Pickup School, which support the floor, are in a situation of incipient failure. The provincial government has shown the same concern we have, and has on an emergent basis visited the site together with Mr. Melanka of our staff, and we believe that with the passage of the following recommendation, suitable funding may be approved this year," wrote Jack Langford March 7, in a communication to the Board of Education.

The recommendation the board of education proceed with the recommended repairs immediately and with the understanding the administration will seek all possible funding under Building Restoration Program from Alberta Education, was passed with minimal discussion.

The school board has also been requested to provide satisfactory dust collection, exhaust system and certain other improvements to H.W. Pickup by the Occupational Health and Safety division of Alberta Labor.

Even though the Provincial School Modernization Program is on hold it is felt this element of work should be undertaken in any case, wrote Langford in a communication to the Board of Education.



New appointment

Drayton Valley Western Review has a new reporter. Joe Poirier will be reporting Drayton Valley and area sports and recreation news. Poirier has been transferred to The Western Review after an eight-month stint with a sister paper, the Whitecourt Star. Poirier had previously been reporting sports in Leduc with The Representative, another sister paper, before his first transfer. Poirier was born and raised in Ontario and studied journalism for two years in Welland near Niagara Falls. Poirier has a keen interest in every form of sports and recreation and will be happy to cover any event.

4-Hers can make money on clean-up

Interested 4-H clubs in the Drayton Valley area have an opportunity of earning $25 a mile by picking up garbage left on highways.

The highway clean-up is planned by the Department of Highways for May 7, said Janice McGregor, district home economist. In case of bad weather the alternate date is May 14, she mentioned.

The highways to be cleaned are immediately outside of Edmonton, Fort Saskatchewan, Hinton, Leduc, St. Albert and Spruce Grove.

McGregor recommended interested clubs contact the local Alberta Transportation foreman and request a stretch of highway. Any stretch of road not taken by April 20 will be given to community groups who wish to participate, she warned.

The groups will be supplied with garbage bags, posters for signs and cars and reflection vests, she said.

Drayton Valley RCMP and paramedics attend Martin Provost of Drayton Valley. Provost was involved in a single-vehicle accident Friday, approximately two km north of Drayton Valley on Highway 22. Provost was attempting to pass another vehicle when he lost control of his 1982 Chevrolet truck, hit the ditch and rolled. The damage is estimated at $10,000. Provost was slightly injured in the accident.

Spruce Grove will host fair

Spruce Grove will be hosting the Parkland County science fair April 27.

Slated for the Serplex, the fair covers projects from county students from Grade 4 through Grade 9 plus some high school students, Parkland curriculum director Peggy Bevan said last week.

Judging will take place during the morning, while public viewing will be allowed from 12:45 to 7:30 p.m.

Awards will be given to individual and group projects in elementary, junior and senior high classes.

Elementary students can choose demonstration, research or experimental projects; junior high have demonstration and experimental and senior have experimental only.

Ribbons will be given to all participants plus special ribbons to first and second place finishers.

In addition first place winners will be awarded trophies.

A best of fair will also be chosen, Bevan explained.

While some schools have playdowns to choose their entries, other smaller schools have not, Bevan said.

Each school is allowed two entries in each category.

Judges for the event are Alberta Teachers' Association officials Bill Fraser, Ernie Glistberg; central office staff Leroy Sloan, John Arnot and George Luck; trustees Rianne Kulak, Wendy Jeglum, Margaret McNary, Pearl Nielsen; and board chairman Don Brandenburg.

Opinions

Budgets indicate sad oversights

The drop in oil prices underscores failings on the part of both the Alberta and the federal governments.

This is budget month for the two governing bodies and both of them are producing housekeeping packages with which to run the country.

What we have needed and what we haven't received are budgets which promote economic diversification.

We have had the financial resources (Alberta is still blessed with the Heritage Savings Trust Fund and has resorted to user fees for hospitals) and did not make adequate use of them.

With the drop in oil prices and the rising interest rates we have seen the death of the megaprojects which were to stimulate the entire country for years to come.

With a series of these non-renewable revenue producers it seemed safe to leave economic diversification on the back shelf.

Now that they have fallen through the governments have been caught with their hands in their pockets. Our economy is vulnerable to the whims of the world oil market.

An interesting study recently released indicates companies employing 20 people or less are responsible for 86 per cent of the new jobs created in the United States.

A study by the Canadian Federation of Independent Business has found that the smaller companies, again ones employing 20 people or less, generate jobs at 20 times the rate of larger companies.

Hindsight is 20-20, but these governments have been talking about diversification for years and nothing significant has been established.

Consider the situation Peter Lougheed's Conservatives would find themselves in if they hadn't called an election last fall. What would the mood of the voters be after the past winter?

Town-county library sharing unfair

Cost-sharing between the County of Parkland and the communities in the county is receiving more attention and the county is going to have to start coming up with some solid answers or more money.

An article in a sister paper, The Spruce Grove Examiner, cites a request by the town of Spruce Grove for a 1,000 per cent increase in the County of Parkland's contribution to the Spruce Grove library.

In Spruce Grove the town asked for $43,000 as being 29 per cent of the operating costs of the library and equivalent to the percentage of library users from the county.

Last year the library received $4,100 from the county, up from the $50 it had been receiving.

In Drayton Valley the situation is even worse.

The local library received the same $50 a year in 1981, but only received a $600 increase in the amount granted from the county.

Approximately 21 per cent of the users of the Drayton Valley library are county residents. The budget for 1982 was about $80,000 — the percentage works out to slightly less than one per cent.

Bicyle course sponsor needed

Spring appears to have made its appearance.

And with it comes all the pleasantries of shirtsleeves and T-shirts and shorts. Spring also brings out the children whether it be on bicycles or rollerskates or simply on foot.

Drivers feel the weather as well and the squeal of tires is more noticeable at this time of year.

Put the two together and there are the possibilities for serious accidents.

Not all drivers squeal their tires, but many children ride bicycles and share the same roads as the cars and trucks.

What we need are courses to instruct the children on proper bicycle safety. The Rotarians used to organize one before they disbanded, but now that service is no longer being provided.

What Drayton Valley needs is a civic-minded organization to take on the role of sponsors of a bicycle safety course. Now is the time to do it before we have any accidents.

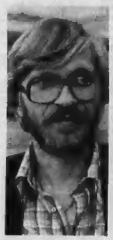
Your Comment

Do you think the cruise missile should be tested in Alberta?

Shannon Schiller
Drayton Valley
Not really, no. I'm not in favor of testing it here at all.

Clay Nolleen
Drayton Valley
Not really. I don't like the nuclear idea. They should stay conventional in warfare. It'll be a lot of trouble for everyone.

Joy Taylor
Drayton Valley
I'm not too keen about it. There's possible implications of further use it might have to Alberta.



Jim Wolff
Drayton Valley
Probably not. It goes along with the pointlessness of killing each other. There is no such thing as anyone benefitting from a limited nuclear war.

Ken Evanchko
Drayton Valley
I don't see why not. They (Alberta) should have a part in it. They're getting too many arms but they can try them here.

Strychnine used

Dog poisoned in Drayton Valley

Dear Editor:

If you value your dog's life, please take the time to read this letter.

Our dog became a victim of strychnine poisoning last week. We take full responsibility for her being out on her own that evening, obviously rooting through someone's garbage, and discovering someone's "planted surprise." Whoever is leaving these succulent morcels lying around, must not realize what a slow and agonizing death strychnine poisoning induces.

We admit there is nothing more irritating than cleaning up someone else's dog excrement in the spring or picking up your once neatly packaged garbage. Believe us, we have picked up our share of both, before we owned our dog and after.

We have even been known to want to "kill that damn dog down the street" for constantly repeating such offences. But that's where the majority of irate people stop. To want to, not act upon their feelings in such a cruel manner.

We had always believed that tying our dog up constantly was cruel. Needless to say our beliefs have had a wide awakening. If you had witnessed the suffering our dog went through late one evening last week, we are sure your views on leashing your pets would also change.

In writing this letter, we are hoping we can help you avoid a tragic but similar experience.

In closing we would like to add that our dog did pull through, thanks to Dr. Lookmanjee's competence and compassion.

Bernard & Kim Parenteau

Local criticizes Pocklington

Editor's note: This letter was given to The Western Review with the intent that it also run as a letter to the editor.

Dear Mr. Pocklington:

(I must use the word Mr. very loosely in this case.) I refer to your remarks in Halifax on April 11, 1983 re: The Honorable Joe Clark and his Thugs.

I know you speak as an expert on that subject, as I have had personal experience with your Thugs right here in Drayton Valley, Alberta. Out here we call them goons. They were some of the most ignorant, obnoxious people I have had the misfortune to meet. Most of them not even residents of this riding. It was clear from their antics of the past few weeks that their major purpose was to cause embarrassment to the Honorable Joe Clark, and all honest, dedicated supporters in the Yellowhead Constituency.

As you will now know by the results of the April 10 Delegate selection meeting in Drayton Valley, the honest people in this riding wanted nothing to do with you, or your Thugs.

Perhaps you should send them on a few seminars, or else fire them and hire real professionals.

Yours truly,
Terence P. Mulgrew
Drayton Valley, Alta.

Hockey game affects YRPC attendance

The National Hockey League semi-final playoffs between Calary and Edmonton affected public attendance at the Yellowhead Regional Planning Commission (YRPC) policy meeting Monday evening in the conference room at the Elks Club.

"The hockey game obviously took precedence," said Charlie Milner, Drayton Valley's elected representative to the commission, referring to the three members of the public in attendance.

"It is kind of tough to compete with the hockey game," said Chris Walker, manager of regional planning for YRPC.

Compared to the last public meeting held in Whitecourt where the commission had 22 people in total turn out, Drayton Valley had 11. Out of the 22 in Whitecourt seven were members of the public, said Walker.

It is somewhat disappointing when people do not turn out for the meetings. But "it is not right to write a complete document without getting public input," said Walker.

"If we don't provide the opportunity people could complain," said John Kovacs, regional planner.

The public meeting was an opportunity for Drayton Valley residents to present their concerns, said Kovacs.

The plan, when completed, will provide municipalities with a basic guideline and direction in planning for growth and change, added Kovacs.

It will also address the economic stability of resource dependent communities, preservation of agricultural land, land use within urban municipalities, problems related to development within the fringes of towns, expansion of hamlets, maintaining environmental quality in the region, transportation, utility issues and the role of the commission in relation to private land, said Kovacs.

The YRPC was established Jan. 1, 1982. The commission is comprised of 16 voting members who act as the governing body. Each town, new town and rural municipality has one representative while villages and summer villages are represented by one member.

The main functions of the YRPC are to prepare, adopt and administer a regional plan, provide daily advice and assistance to member municipalities on planning matters, prepare statutory plans, land use bylaws and orders and other planning studies for member municipalities. As well, the commission approves subdivisions within ther region except for the County of Parkland. The final function is to inform the public and encourage public participation in planning matters.

The commission hopes to have the plan complete by the October municipal elections, said Walker.

Once the document is completed, public hearings will be held, said Walker.

Comedy presented

Music and comedy are the themes the Drayton Valley Players will be concentrating on in their season's end productions of Godspell and Barefoot in the Park, to be presented in May.

Both productions will involve about 25 to 30 people.

President of the club Brenda Prentice and Terri Gillis, vice-president and director of public relations, are enthusiastic about the plays and their co-workers.

"Right now we're concentrating on practising with the music end of Godspell," Prentice said.

The theatre group has been going in Drayton Valley since its inception in 1976 but have not always had people stay with the group.

"We have our ups and downs but we still keep going," Prentice said. "The town is quite supportive though, especially of the musicals we do."

The group performs its plays at Frank Maddock High School and its musicals at the junior high school.

County will investigate toll-free number

County info letter?

Parkland County needs some form of newsletter or information brochure, Division 1 Councillor Ron Pollock told a meeting last week.

Graminia School is not in the phone book for some nearby residents, he said, adding information on development permits and the like could be complied for a brochure.

Reeve Les Miller said putting the necessary information into a package isn't difficult, but distribution is. Real estate agencies may be an avenue, he said.

Division 4 Councillor Ken Fuhr said funds have been alloted to such a brochure containing 'vital information,' but it is stalled in the education department.

Administration staff will investigate.

Toll-free number needed

Parkland County will investigate installing a toll-free telephone line in the Stony Plain office.

Division 1 Councillor Ron Pollock told a meeting last week many of his area residents must call long distance to Stony Plain, and to Graminia School, which is in their area.

The same is true for county residents on the Onoway exchange, councillors were told. Staff will investigate the costs of toll-free and direct lines from the two areas.

Rink meeting May 5

Parkland County councillors will meet recreation board members May 5 to discuss the recently-completed ice facility study. The report actually went to council in mid-March, but councillors have asked for a joint meeting to discuss the ice facility and a number of other topics.

Road meetings set

Two upcoming meetings will discuss road construction plans in Parkland County in 1983. Councillors met with Alberta Transportation April 18 to discuss grants and projects planned by the province for the year.

A May 14 meeting is planned for Blueberry Community School to discuss provincial plans to rebuild the road to Hasse Lake Provincial Park, and its effects on nearby property.

No Universiade $$

Parkland County has decided not to commit funds to the upcoming world university games in Edmonton. County councillors rejected a request for $10,000, or any contribution, at a recent regular meeting.

He-Ho-Ha wants $175,000

Community use of a proposed pool at the He-He-Ha camp for disabled will be a key factor in the project receiving Parkland County support, Recreation Director Barb Smith said last week a meeting will soon be held between camp and recreation board officials to discuss use of the pool by county residents. Scheduling of county time could be difficult, she said, as peak summer periods for camp use would coincide with county use.

Recreation board member Shirley Fuhr told last week's meeting a recent telerama raised funds for the pool, and Parkland's funds, albeit provincially-allocated grantal could be better spent on a pool in Drayton Valley. "It may be more useful for county residents and it won't be built without our help," she said.

The board tabled a proposed $175,000 allocation to the pool until the upcoming meeting.

Budget down, comparatively

Parkland County's proposed 1983 parks and recreation budget is both up and down, Director Barb Smith said last week. Total expenditures are up, but so are the number of areas now covered by the recreation budget. With ice flooding, park reserve maintenance and library funding now recreation items, the budget has increased. Comparing the proposed budget to 1982's shows expenses for similar areas is actually down, she said. Still not accepted by county council, the 1983 recreation budget will show a larger deficit due to expected revenue decreases, Smith predicted.

Recreation

Spring takes off

Aaron Fiveland, 12, of Drayton Valley, goes up for a lay-up during a little recreational interlude beside the arena. The spring weather has allowed many youngsters and adults alike to get out and enjoy the summer sports.

U of L athlete awarded MVP

A Moon Lake man has been named most valuable player at the University of Lethbridge for his participation on the men's cross-country running team.

Barry Benger, 20, was presented the award March 21 after his successful season as captain of the track team. This is his second season as captain of the team.

Benger is training for the 900-metre, 800-metre and 1,000-metre races.

"This summer will be a key determinant as to how I do this year and how I will pursue track," Benger said. "My goal is to do well in track competition and improve my times."

Benger couldn't be in better hands at the University. His coach is former Canadian team coach George Gemer, the same man who instructed Diane Jones-Konihowski during her track training.

Benger is working in general sciences but his parents, Joanne and John Benger, say they suspect he may change programs.

"He'll be going to Hungary for the summer to train but he wants to get a job in Lethbridge so he can continue his training there before he leaves," Mrs. Benger said.

The Bengers have lived in the Moon Lake area for more than 10 years and came to Canada from England so Barry would get a better education.

Benger went to school at Grand Trunk in Evansburg. He was coached in track and field under Bill Semenyna, a former Lethbridge student who convinced Benger to go to Lethbridge.

Benger is training under a university scholarship for his track and field abilities.

His ability seems to be as strong as his will to strive for perfection as he now runs the 800-metre race in under two minutes.

Classes begin

Belly dancing and paper tole have something in common in Drayton Valley.

Both activities will be taught as part of Powerhouse Further Education Council. Adults 18 years and older may register for the spring non-credit courses or submit interest sheets for many other courses available if numbers warrant them.

Cardio - pulmonary resuscitation will be the only course that will be a certified program partially funded by the provincial government.

School badminton players come up short

Students and staff of Frank Maddock High School hosted the regional badminton tournament on the weekend. Although none of the individuals or teams will advance to the zone finals.

Drayton Valley's Trey Kelly came in second in the intermediate singles competition while Trent Pankewicz was second in the junior boys' singles.

Kathy Hannas and Kim Glows finished second to Evansburg in the junior girls' doubles competition while Tom Schwartz and Gerald Trimple ended up in second in the junior boys' doubles.

Grande Cache earned the junior girls' singles while Edson took second. Edson won the intermediate singles while Jasper was second and Hinton third. Jasper took the intermediate doubles and Evansburg was runner-up.

Jasper won the girls' senior final in a walk over while Edson finished over Hinton and Jasper in the senior girls' doubles.

Seba Beach won the junior boys' singles while Drayton Valley was second and Jasper third. Evansburg won the junior boys' doubles while Drayton Valley was second and Hinton third.

Jasper won the intermediate singles and Drayton Valley was second.

Edson won the intermediate doubles and Hinton was second.

Jasper won the senior singles over Edson.

In the mixed competition Evansburg captured the junior competition, and the intermediate then came in second to Hinton in the senior category.

Mark Smeland, 7, takes advantage of the good weather we experienced in Drayton Valley last week as he flies his kite. Although the fields were a little soft from the melted snow, the sunshine gave ample excuse for this young pilot to try the spring wings.

Michael Harrison, 8, flies his bat kite at Eldorado School playground.

Target range to come this year

Shooting club realizes dream

When a two and a half year dream is only a month from becoming a reality, people often say they can taste it. This is the case with the people working to bring recreational shooting to Drayton Valley and area residents.

"This is the year," Gord Maclock, secretary-treasurer of the Evergreen Shooting Club said. "It will be operating this summer."

Maclock expects much of the bushing and grooming of their range to be completed soon. When it is finished the range will have two areas to be used.

The men and women of the club are working on the fencing, picnic areas, backstops and shooting stags. When it is complete the club will be 150 members strong. That is only a modest estimate, Maclock said.

"We've been at this for more than two and a half years," Maclock said. "It's been a tough fight to get the space and now we hope to get a grant for it."

Hal Meek, president of the club, has called a meeting for all those interested in joining the members. The meeting will be April 21 at the Amoco Safety Hall at 7:30 p.m.

"This will be a big one," Maclock said.

The completed construction of the range will meet federal regulations and it will be certified.

The range is 4 km from Drayton Valley on the Old Ferry Road in the river flat area 17 km from the Buck Creek Fractionation Plant.

Courses still open

Joan Ducketi is the co-ordinator of the programs, which consistently attract more than 900 registrations.

Only a few courses are filled right away so some of the courses are open for late registration to those in the council's boundaries. These boundaries include the town of Drayton Valley, the rural area within two kilometres east of Tomahawk, the county boundary to the west, and south, as well as Moon Lake to the north.

Recreation director returns

Mary Tourneur, recreation director of Drayton Valley office, will be on the town recreation board strictly as resource person.

Tourneur had been on the board as a voting county representative but left the board back around October.

"There was a misunderstanding on the part of the county and town council," Tourneur said.

"That's all it was," Dennis Woolsey said. "It was a miscommunication."

Now that the communication has been cleared up the regular recreation board will meet with Tourneur and board member Maurice McCullagh, county representative and voting recreation board member April 20 at the downstairs meeting room at the town office.

***

Tourneur will be organizing this year's County Fun Run in Wabamun May 14.

The annual 5.5 km run will be a non-competitive family outing to promote running in the county.

There will be special awards given to runners who are the oldest, the youngest, the largest family and for the largest school participation.

Entry fees will be charged before the run and all finishing participants will be awarded T-shirts.

Tourneur said she is expecting about 1,500 to 2,000 runners for the event. Her estimates are based on a figure of 1,700 runners who turned out last year.

***

County of Parkland will be offering a Friday midnight swim as part of the summer swim program.

***

Fastball diamonds are going to be used a little more than last season since the adoption of the new slow pitch league.

"We are short a couple of diamonds," Woolsey said. "We are going to build three more in the West Valley but they will not be ready for this season. We'll try to keep everyone happy."

Drayton Valley man wins tourney

By Joe Poirier

A Drayton Valley man has won the senior 78 kilogram and under, blue belt and under championship at the provincial judo tournament held in Edmonton.

Dave Swap, 26, a member of the Drayton Valley Judo Club, won all five bouts in his bid to be the best in his category, while he was the lowest belt hold in the same category.

Swap, a yellow belt, defeated competitors three belts higher (orange, green and blue) than his rating.

"I guess I fight better scared than I do mad," Swap said. "It went so fast I didn't know what happened."

The bouts were judged in the point system and Swap received full points for every bout except his last but even that bout was over sooner than Swap thought it would take.

Drayton Valley was also represented by Melvin Waddell, a junior fourth degree orange belt, David Boehm, 15, in the 71 kilogram and under class and Don Fulks, a brown belt competitor at the same tournament March 19.

Fulks won the same title Swap did two years ago which indicates a strong growth within the club.

David Swap throws a fellow Drayton Valley club member.

The club meets twice a week at Eldorado School. The judo club swelled to about 35 members at the beginning of the year but has since tailed off to about 15 to 25 members, most of whom are junior participants.

The club is trying to encourage senior members to participate and join the club in the fall.

Bowlers rolling

Bowling is not just for the young as six Drayton Valley residents are proving.

After placing second in the zones final of the seniors' bowling March 21, Drayton Valley's six-member golden age bowling team are off to Sherwood Park to compete in the provincials April 21.

Bowling for Drayton Valley will be Marge Brennan, Robert and Bertha Elliott, Mandy Malainey, Mike Mandriak and Henry Nicholson.

The mixed and ladies' leagues have concluded their season and Laura Barker has captured the women's individual awards once more.

Barker took the high average, high single and high total in the women's category of the mixed and ladies' bowling.

Roll Alongs won the Monday 7 to 9 p.m. and the Alley Oops were second. In the 9 to 11 p.m. time the Nimrods won with the Bootleggers runners-up. Hill Billies won the Tuesday 7 to 9 p.m. and Country Bums were second. Hayseeds won the 9 to 11 p.m. position and IGA Best were second best.

Humpers won the Wednesday 7 to 9 slot and the Idgets were second while the RCMP team nipped The Klan. Dipsticks won the Thursday 7 to 9 time while the Happy Five had to be content with second. Late 70's took the 9 to 11 side over the Pinheads. Kazoleas won the Friday 9 to 11 slot over the Tube Test Rollers.

Misfits won the Monday women's bowling over F.O.R.S.H. while the Jolly Five outbowled the Pin Busters in the Tuesday women's league. Smurfs smurfed a title from the Hi Hopes while the Berrymoor Rollers outmuscled the Hoo-do-dems.

YBC bowling continues this week with finals held this week. Seniors play April 20 while the juniors play April 21.

Marge Brennan will be one of six golden age bowlers off to the provincials.

Fastball is back

Break out the bases and begin to compile the stats—Evergreen fastball is back in Drayton Valley.

An estimated 11 teams will be participating in the summer league.

It will begin April 25 under President Mike Koebernick and Treasurer Gary Hanson. The season will conclude with the year-end tournament July 9 and 10 and will include the top five or six teams in a double-knockout situation.

The league plans to hold an umpires' clinic to encourage more people to become involved with the games.

This season the league plans to have the Merchants, Lodgepole, Tigers, Knights, Cynthia, the Juniors, Buck Creek, Wildcats, Penneys and last season's champions, Whitby, participating.

With the proposed new pitch league in Drayton Valley, the field scheduling will mean more games being played out of Drayton Valley and possibly more in Lodgepole.

Arena ice melts

By Joe Fairier

The last groove has been skated, the last check made and the last goal has been scored in the Drayton Valley arena for the 1982-83 hockey and figure skating season.

The ice has been taken out.

Only the echoes of cheers in the minds of the arena staff and residents remain.

The heaters and fluorescent lights were left on for about three days and the refrigeration units were shut down, paving the way for ball hockey.

Ironically, the centre of the surface was the first to go—the place where the beginning of every hockey game occurred.

The floor was nothing but a wave of water a day later and as the Drayton Valley Recreation Department work crews began breaking up the ice with trucks and shovels, the ice began to lose its sting.

Most of the back wrenching work was completed. The work was shared by Cal Witzal and Julius Schultz and the familiar arena staff. The regulars who worked on the ice maintenance, Sandy Lukach, Allan Oscar, Margaret Van Den Heuvel and Mark Westaby had mixed emotions about losing the "home away from home."

These people will still be working for the town's department but only in park, building and field maintenance. Town workers will be picking up more dirt on one street with their cleaners than a sweeper picks up all day in the city.

So the work goes on for these people.

As the arena is left to dry, all that is left in view for the hockey fans are the names of the players, coaches and trainers of last season's Drayton Valley teams hanging along the east wall.

Ice removal

Al Oscar shovels the remaining chunks of ice out of Drayton Valley arena April 13. The arena maintenance crews have prepared the ice hockey arena for ball hockey.

Volunteers needed for Fun Run

Volunteers are needed to assist in this year's county Fun Run.

Randy Strocki, Assistant Recreation Director for the County of Parkland, said approximately 60 volunteers were used last year but added that race organizers are hoping that the response in that area will be even greater this year.

Since the number of participants in previous years has lingered at the 1,500 mark, Strocki said it is "extremely important" that they get as many volunteers as possible to help organize the day and ensure the run's success.

Some of the specific duties volunteers will undertake include T-shirt distribution, parking, traffic and crowd control. Anyone who would like to become involved in the run can contact Strocki at 963-2231, extension 330.

The run itself is slated to take place Saturday, May 14 and will begin shortly after 1 p.m., following a guest fun race.

Since the system adopted in 1982 worked so well, race organizers said they will use the same format again this year. This requires that participants use either a blue or pink color-coded form when registering, according to genre.

Runners can participate in one of the following categories: open male, open female, school staff, male, school staff, female, high school boys, high school girls, junior high boys, junior high girls, elementary girls, Grades 1 to 3, elementary boys, Grades 1 to 3, elementary girls, Grades 4 to 6, elementary boys, Grades 4 to 6 and family.

Following the race awards will be presented to the youngest runner, largest family and oldest runner. A school award will also be presented to the school having the largest percentage running.

County cutting back in program

The County of Ladue is cutting back this year on payments to truckers hauling for the local road program.

The municipal committee decided March 3 to begin advertising and accepting applications for this year's truckers—at reduced rates.

The new payments are 80 cents a cubic yard of gravel and 30 cents a yard-mile, down from the 1982 rates of 91 cents a cubic yard and 22.2 cents a yard-mile.

The road program now being considered covers about 600 miles, a slight increase from 1982 mileage.

Final approval of the mileage will take place when councillors set the overall county budget and the mill rate.

The decision to reduce payments came after the committee examined the 1983 program and the possibility of contracting the job to a private company instead of hiring its own truckers.

Councillors looked at a proposal to gravel across the county in the same manner as Division 1, but decided to stick with their usual practice.

Division 1 is gravelled under contract separately from the other six divisions, since it's too far from gravel supplies to be included in the regular program economically.

Rummagers buy

Drayton Valley Knights of Columbus contributed their share of a province-wide blitz for charities appeal on the weekend. The Knights collected more than $500 in their canvassing with Tootsie Rolls at the mall and conducted a charity rummage sale at Woodland Chrysler.

Many personal donations were snatched up by bargain hunters Saturday as the rummage sale opened to the public in the morning.

Beds, bikes and books were sold in the lilis.

The Tootsie Roll became the most talked about candy in town as the canvassers pushed for charity.

Embryo transplants a useful technique

By Stuart Adams

The operation takes about 10 minutes to perform, but the benefits are far reaching as far as cattle breeders are concerned.

By the use of embryo transplants a top cow can produce as many as 100 offspring a year or embryos from her can be stored indefinitely in a frozen state.

The technique involves implanting a fertilized egg "flushed" from the selected cow into a donor cow. Because the egg is already fertilized it carries only the genetic information from its parents and an embryo implanted into a scrub cow from purebred parents will result in a purebred calf.

Dr. Curt Hagele is a veterinarian from the Saskatoon Embryo Transplant Centre who has been doing the work since 1975. He was at the Cormie Ranch near Tomahawk recently to implant 29 embryos from a Cormie-owned Simmental.

The Cormie cow was kept through the winter in Saskatoon and treated with hormones which made it "superovulate." Instead of the animal producing one egg at a time during heat, she would produce about 15 eggs at once. These would then be artificially inseminated and left to develop for about one week.

Although the implantation operation is relatively simple and results in about a 65 per cent success rate Hagele said the most difficult aspect is removing the eggs from the donor cow and freezing them.

They would then be "flushed" from the uterus of the cow and frozen in a saline solution.

Hagele described the process as a gradual one where the eggs are dehydrated and frozen step by step until they reach a state similar to suspended animation at minus 200 degrees C.

"The egg will keep indefinitely at that point," he said.

At the seven-day stage the egg will have progressed to embryos comprised of 128 cells. One hundred and fifty eggs side by side would make an inch, added Hagele.

When the eggs are to be implanted they have to go through a thawing process which replenishes the water in the cells and gradually increases the temperature. This takes several hours.

The transplants were done at the Cormie Ranch south end facility using recipient cows which are deemed unworthy as breeding stock, but are still healthy and capable of carrying a calf.

The operation is a simple insertion of the embryo into the cow's uterus.

The transplants were done by Hagele and a technician from SATL, Keith Johnson.

The two men worked together as they did the "flank transfer" operations. Johnson would insert an anesthetic into the cow's back and freeze two major nerves on one side of the animal.

Hagele would then make a 10 cm incision in the animal's side and find the uterus, into which Johnson would insert the embryo.

After that it was a simple matter of stitching the incision up and turning the cow loose.

Selection of the recipient cows is important, said Hagele. The recipient cow must be at the same stage of the menstrual cycle as the donor cow. He explained there are hormonal changes through the cycle and the embryo has to be placed in a hormonal environment similar to the one it was removed from.

Johnson pointed out the implant method is useful for moving cattle to other countries. A breeder doesn't have to deal with quarantine regulations and one side effect of using the method is the calf acquires the recipient's immunological capacities. Therefore implants born in Africa would already be immune to a variety of diseases and sicknesses inherent to the area.

Bruce Cormie prepares a "scrub" cow for a flank transplant. The calf she will have will be worth up to $5,000.

Ranch manager Bruce Cormie said it cost between $1,400 and $1,500 for each calf when the embryo, insemination and transplant were taken into consideration. He explained the process made it unviable for commercial operators but pointed out top calves are worth as much as $4,000 to $5,000 when they're born.

Drayton Valley parking problem probed

By Stuart Adams

Drayton Valley town council took the first steps at its Thursday meeting toward alleviating the parking problem downtown.

Reporting from the Municipal Planning Commission, Councillor Charlie Miner said the commission feels the move is a necessary action. "The MPC is aware of the serious parking problem situation in the general downtown area and that something will have to be done about it."

He added the MPC is also aware the solution would involve a considerable amount of property and business which would be affected.

The area defined as downtown is bounded by 50th St. in the east; 53rd St. in the west; the lane behind the town office in the north; and the lane behind the Drayton Valley Hotel in the south.

The motion carried unanimously instructed the administration to provide information on the time, money and staff which would be needed to do a study on the situation.

Council moved to continue its committee of the whole meetings held prior to the regular town council meetings.

"It is the one time when council can sit down and talk to administration about the nuts and bolts items that are time consuming for a public meeting," said Mayor Mayhew.

Councillor Koskinen agreed, saying he feels it gives him more information and by being more familiar with the topics on the agenda council can do a better and quicker job.

Councillor Charlie Miner expressed concern over H.W. Pickup Junior High School pedestrians and Mayor Mayhew suggested the Protection Committee should "look at a jaywalking bylaw before someone gets hurt."

Miner brought the subject up in the general information session of council. "I am absolutely amazed at what I consider the absolute total defiance of the junior high students," he said.

He described driving at lunch time on 46th St. in front of the school as requiring extra care and caution because the students step out onto the street oblivious to the traffic. "It's out of control," he said.

Miner also addressed the mayor in reference to comments he made at the close of the last council meeting. At that time he criticised fellow councillor Bob Booth for suggesting there are members of the council secretly opposed to a new swimming pool.

Miner made his comments as the last councillor to be called on in the general information session.

The remarks prompted Booth to demand a reply. Mayor Mayhew lost control of the meeting as Booth replied to Miner's statement.

In this recent meeting Miner said he apologized for making the remarks at the time he did which was inopportune and made for an uncomfortable situation for the mayor.

He added he wasn't apologizing for the remarks, just for the timing of them.

Streets get clean sweep

The Mobil sweeper cleans up the gravel left during the winter on 54th Street.

Drayton Valley's street sweeper is being worked two shifts a day as spring weather permits.

At Thursday's town council meeting Councillor Ken Koskinen asked the administration what was being done about the cleanliness of the streets.

"I would hope a more concentrated effort be made to clean the streets," he said. "I don't like what I see."

Town Manager Manny Deol explained the day before was the first day out for the town's streetsweeper this year.

Prior to that the streets were too wet, he said.

Weather permitting, the sweeper was being run in two eight-hour shifts a day, from 4 a.m. to noon and from noon to 8 p.m.

Deol added this year there is more sand and gravel on the streets because there was no snow removal during the winter. All the sand spread on the streets during the winter has remained through to the spring.

Tax request refused

A Parkland County resident who wanted his taxes back so he could use the money was turned down last week by county council.

Dartmoor Meadows resident Gary Niehaus had asked that his $1,401 in taxes and penalties be refunded to him so he could use the money for the balance of 1983. County tax penalties of 18 per cent were added to taxes Sept. 1, 1982, plus another compounded 18 per cent Jan. 1, 1983.

Niehaus' wife paid the taxes March 22, but didn't realize leaving them unpaid up to Dec. 31 would cost him no more.

County Administrator Otto Schuster said Niehaus' request isn't the first, but no taxes have ever been refunded on such grounds.

Schuster said he feels obligated to tell taxpayers they will not be further penalized until Jan. 1, 1984, although it means the county won't get the tax money.

Division 1 Councillor Ron Pollock said Niehaus could gain about $160 if he had the $1,401 back. Division 3 Councillor George Maan said refunding the money would necessitate a change in county policy.

Reeve Les Miller said the county could lower the penalty rates. When banks were paying high rates of interest it was not good business to pay taxes, he said, although that situation has reversed itself now.

Legislation denies right to strike

By Geoff White and Sheila Pratt

The government aims to make nurses' strikes a thing of the past with Bill 44, a major re-write of Alberta's labor legislation.

Nurses and all other hospital workers will be stripped of the right to strike.

And they, along with policemen, firemen and all other provincial government employees, will be forced into a new system of compulsory arbitration of contract disputes.

Unions, angered by the bill, believe the new arbitration rules have been heavily weighted in favor of the government.

Arbitration panels formed to settle disputes will have to consider general employment conditions and the government's fiscal policies in making awards.

Previously these committees made comparisons with other union settlements, reviewed traditional wage differentials between occupations and examined the nature of the skills workers required for the job.

The bill is a direct response to three nurses' strikes in five years and arbitration awards in 1982 that the government believed were too high for the times.

Nurses went on strike for a record of 23 days in 1982, and the government eventually responded by passing special back-to-work legislation.

Arbitration awards for government employees in 1982 were in the order of 20 per cent over two years in line with contract settlements for other union groups.

But government ministers expressed their anger that these awards did not reflect the levels of job insecurity for most of the private sector workforce and the incidence of wage cutbacks in many non-union jobs.

The government has indicated how seriously it considers the political dangers of the bill by ordering a suspension of the regular legislative session in order to hold public hearings in late April.

Unions and other interest groups were given 10 days to express their desire to appear before the committee of the whole assembly.

The bill also changes traditional union "successor" rights when a business takes over or merges with another.

Rather than dictating that existing union certifications and collective agreements remain in place as the current law does, the new bill will allow the labor relations board to cancel or amend the business's union arrangements.

Both NDP members of the legislature and independent member Ray Speaker condemned the government for not giving the public sufficient time to prepare for the special hearings.

Banks honored at celebration

By Alma Johnson
727-2312

Delbert and Lil Farrell of Evansburg were afternoon visitors at the Norm Johnson home recently.

A dance and midnight supper was held recently to honor Frank and Fay Banks on their 25th wedding anniversary. The Moon Lake Hall was filled with friends, neighbors and relatives, who all came to wish them well.

Frank's sister Joan and her husband George of Vancouver were among the close family members who travelled here for the occasion.

Fred Cherrington celebrated his 84th birthday recently.

Overnight visitors recently at the home of Ray and Diane Tufty were Diane's brother and wife, Lyle and Debbie Christensen of the Drumheller area.

Laura Tufty accompanied her granddaughter Norma on a weekend trip to Calgary to visit relatives.

Darlene Wolosyn has returned to her job in a rig camp at Zama Lake.

Editor's note: We wish to apologize for any confusion resulting from mistakes in the Moon Lake News of our March 30 issue. The mistake was made during the composition of the paper and does not reflect on our correspondent, Alma Johnson.

Video arcades do not cause delinquency

Video arcades do not significantly contribute to delinquent behavior in school children, says a report by a York University sociologist.

Dr. Desmond Ellis says his study of 256 school children living near Toronto shows that many delinquent children play video games, but their delinquency is usually caused by inadequate parental control.

He also said he found little evidence that video games contribute significantly to drug use or poor grades or that children spend much of their lunch money on the games.

The results were based on responses to interviews and questionnaires given to boys and girls in two schools with predominantly working-class populations. The students, who were not aware of the purpose of the study, were asked how many hours a week they normally spend in various leisure activities, including video games.

The questionnaires and interviews were also used to measure the students' level of delinquency, by asking such questions as "Do you usually finish your homework?" or "Have you cheated in class?"

The answers indicated the students who visit arcades are more likely than others to be delinquent, but that video games enthusiasts are less likely to be delinquent if they are subject to strong parental control.

The study found that delinquency was a much more serious problem for students whose parents let them visit arcades after 10 p.m.—a good indicator of weak parental control, says Ellis because it is normally illegal in Ontario for children under 16 to be outside the home after 10 p.m. without adult supervision.

Far less delinquency was noted for children who visited arcades frequently, but were not allowed outside after 10 p.m.

Even though video game fans are slightly more delinquent than abstainers, this appears to have no impact on academic performance.

Ellis says video game playing is not addictive. Only 9.8 per cent of the children surveyed reported spending more than four hours a week in an arcade, while the average child spends about 10 hours watching television and five hours reading for every hour spent playing video games.

Three per cent of the children reported spending their lunch money on video games. Fourteen per cent said they were approached in an arcade by drug dealers, although this was reported mainly by students who visited arcades after the 10 p.m. curfew.

Ellis recommends that parents exercise greater control in preventing their children from leaving home after 10 p.m. He also recommends that arcades be permitted in public malls where they would be more subject to bylaws and regulations.

Road budget cut

The provincial grant program largely responsible for road improvements in the Buck Creek area last year has been hit hard by the recession.

The County of Leduc municipal committee heard Thursday $100,000 will be received this year under the economic stabilization program.

The county received $250,000 under the same program last year.

Now being phased out by Alberta Transportation, the program was intended to stimulate activity in sectors of the economy related to oil.

After receiving the funds in 1981 and again in 1982, the county undertook improvements on about 22 kilometres (13 miles) of roads in the Buck Creek area.

The grant paid for most of both years' work.

A decision has yet to be made on how the stabilization funds will be spent this year, Assistant Secretary-Treasurer Larry Majeski said recently.

Local convicted of resisting arrest

Lawrence Hawkins of Drayton Valley was convicted in Drayton Valley Provincial Court April 14 of resisting lawful arrest and illegal conveyance of alcohol.

The charges resulted when Drayton Valley RCMP attempted to arrest Hawkins Feb. 26.

Two Drayton Valley men were arrested during the evening of April 13 after attempting to break into Valley West IDA Drugs. Both have been charged with attempted break and enter. Only one of the men has been remanded and both will appear in court April 23. RCMP plan to continue the investigation.

***

Three Drayton Valley men will be appearing in provincial court April 25 on a charge of theft over $200, mischief and wilful damage.

The charges resulted from a complaint made by a local man who attended a bush party April 16, said a spokesman for the Drayton Valley RCMP.

The vehicle owned by the complainant was subjected to extensive damage and theft while parked at the bush party.

Partiers also caused a great deal of damage to the private land they trespassed on, said the RCMP spokesman.

Ragout a new treat

By Wendy Thomson

It seems a little strange to be back in my kitchen after three months away from it, but it feels good to be home, too.

I made the following one night, to clear out the fridge.

Sausage Ragout

Ingredients: 1 (19 oz.) can tomatoes; ½ cup tomato juice or sauce; 2 cups thinly sliced carrots; 2 crushed cloves garlic; ½ tsp. thyme; ½ tsp. salt; ¼ tsp. basil; 1 (19 oz.) can kidney beans, drained; 1½ cups celery, thinly sliced; and ¾ lb. kielbasa or Polish sausage.

Heat tomatoes and juice or sauce in large saucepan. Add next five ingredients, bring to a boil, reduce heat and cover. Boil gently 10 minutes.

Cut sausage into bite-sized pieces and add to tomatoes, along with celery and beans. Cook three to five minutes more.

Serve with rolls and green salad. Serves three or four.

Consumers can avoid unlicenced contractors

By Lynn Wight
Alberta Consumer and Corporate Affairs

Many people are remodelling houses rather than buying new ones. Whether it's a large project or a minor change there are some steps to take to make the job smoother.

Get the details, from the overall plan to the finishing materials, down on paper. Now's the time to check what's available in selection and price for all the materials that will be used.

If the repair money is a government grant or loan, find out what information must be presented for project approval and/or releasing of funds.

Before the job is started, determine if zoning approval or a building permit is required.

Anyone undertaking a remodelling task should have a detailed budget and cash flow projection for the project. An over-run allowance has saved many projects from delay when miscellaneous expenses appeared.

The key to the budget when hiring someone to do the job is the estimate. At least three written estimates should be obtained, based on the detailed plan made. Basic costs of material and labor don't differ much so estimates should be fairly similar. The more detail you can provide, the more accurate the estimate.

Price isn't the only estimate consideration. Start date, completion date and method of payment should be included.

References are the best way to check out the quality of work. Ask for names of previous customers and follow up with them.

Don't give any contractor a deposit unless he is licensed and bonded by Alberta Consumer and Corporate Affairs. Check by calling 422-2590.

The bond can't be used for a claim for unsatisfactory work

Beware of contractors

- who knock on the door to tell you they just happen to be doing some work in the area and can give you a special price;
- who promise a discount if you allow them to use your home to advertise work. The same offer will have been made to everyone;
- who quote a price without seeing the job;
- who demand a large down payment to buy materials. All reputable contractors maintain charge accounts with suppliers;
- who refuse to give a written contract specifying exactly what they say they will do; and
- whose only address is a post office box, a telephone number, or the address of their answering service.

Garbage yields gold

Local youth groups and other organizations have a chance to turn garbage into gold.

The County of Parkland will be conducting in the near future a litter clean-up program on roadsides and other areas, said Richard Wolosyn, assistant agricultural fieldman.

There is no roadside clean-up in this area because the Department of Highways has their own program, he said. But, he added, there are nuisance grounds and dump sites the 4-H clubs, organizations and youth groups can clean up.

The program has been running for three years now, and only two or three groups apply each year, he said. This year there are seven nuisance areas to be cleaned up, said Wolosyn. Interested groups must have their applications in before April 29, he warned.

Wolosyn estimated it would take a group of a dozen volunteers about half a day to clean up a particular area. Each group is supplied with 100 garbage bags, he said. They have a period of one month to complete their project, he added.

Anglican fund drive does well

Easter saw the Anglicans in Mission fund drive go well over the top. It marked the conclusion of the campaign in local Anglican congregations in Drayton Valley, Evansburg and Breton.

In Drayton Valley and Evansburg, a total of $24,860 has been raised to date, reports Miriam Roberts, campaign chairperson.

The one-year program, which is national in scope, included Bible and mission study programs under the leadership of Marion Palmer, study co-ordinator.

All Saints' Parish in Drayton Valley and St. Paul's in Evansburg have been combined as a single unit for fund raising purposes. A separate campaign was held in St. Joseph's Parish in Breton, resulting in gifts totalling $1,375. Norah Impey was the campaign chairperson. In each parish unit the final results exceeded the target figures by almost 200 per cent.

The local parishes were part of a larger action grouping which included Leduc, Wetaskiwin and Ponoka. Parish reports for the area indicate that a total of $66,345, the target for the area, has already been exceeded. Results to date also indicate that the Diocesan target of $1,008,000 has been comfortably exceeded. Early reports at the national level show that $33 million of the $40 million target has been received and that the campaign can be expected to go over the top.

Local program Director C.B. Dawkins was delighted with the enthusiasm generated by the program and the generous local response.

Pensioners, churches in the north and overseas will benefit from the program at the national level, and there will be an ongoing program of mission study and interpretation provided to local parish groupings over the next few years.

Snow tires cause more damage

The early arrival of spring marks the need for motorists to replace their winter tires with conventional types.

Procrastinators who wear their winter treads into late spring or summer face a costly and possibly dangerous situation.

Grant McDonald, senior tire construction engineer, warns winter tread tires are not designed for extended use on warm, paved surfaces. He says winter tires, with their deep grooves and heavy shoulders, build up heat more rapidly than conventional summer tires at high speeds.

"Heat is a tire's worst enemy. It can wear a tire out in a very short time," he says.

"The heavier tread design is not as fuel efficient as a summer tire either."

Failure to properly store and mark radial tires can also result in reduced tire life. Radial snow tire owners should mark their tires "left" or "right" prior to removal for storage to maintain the same direction of forward rotation when the tires are remounted next winter.

"Changing the normal direction of rotation of a radial tire after it has been 'broken-in' by switching the tire from one side of the car to the other could result in ride problems or less than optimum service," says McDonald.

Conventional bias and bias belted snow tires need not be marked as they are normally rotated from one side of the car to the other. Studded bias and bias-belted snow tires should not be rotated from side to side as driving torque can loosen studs.

Motorists should store mounted snow tires uninflated in sealed plastic bags to reduce atmosphere weathering and stress of internal air

Safety comes first every season

Every year, about one in every 15 persons in Canada is injured accidentally in the home environment and requires professional medical attention. In addition, according to the Canada Safety Council, approximately 2,000 persons die in fatal accidents in the home environment.

When tackling home projects get help with heavy loads. Don't risk a back injury. It might affect you for life.

When using a lawn mower, push, don't pull. The machine should not be lifted or tipped while it is running. Stop it when it is unattended, even for a moment.

Shut off and disconnect power before attempting to unclog the machine or when moving it from one level to another. On steep slopes, operate from side to side.

Keep bystanders out of the work area and never allow youngsters to operate the lawn mower. Wear safety foot wear.

Inspect ladders before use to make sure they are in good condition, and set them on solid ground. A straight ladder should be set one foot out from the wall for every four feet up the wall.

Be sure electric tools have ground wires or are double-insulated to avoid electric shock. Keep guards in place when using workshop tools and wear personal protective equipment.

Tax forms due April 30th

Anyone who did not receive a T4 and other necessary information slips by early March from employers, places where interest was earned or other income, and from post-secondary education centres attended should find out why.

If you still do not have required slips and forms by April 30, file a tax return that day with an estimate of income and deductions, attaching a note explaining what the problem was and what you did about it and keep a copy of the note and all other documents mailed to the tax man. (About eight million returns are mailed toward the end of April each year.)

After a tax return is processed, the taxpayer is mailed a notice from the Winnipeg Taxation Centre, where all tax return papers are kept on file.

Tax Tips

The District Taxation office has computer access to information about your return, and if necessary will have your return sent from Winnipeg.

If an error is made on your tax return, that will usually delay a claimed refund by months.

Most assessment notices which upset taxpayers arise from a government misunderstanding of fact on the taxpayer's return, slips and forms; or from missing information.

Most cases are resolved, without need of the taxpayer filing a notice of objection, when additional facts or clarification of the previously submitted information is presented by the taxpayer.

Send all questions and information about your tax life, with your social insurance number, home and work telephone numbers, and return address, by certified mail, to District Taxation Office, 9620 107th St., Edmonton, Alta. T5K 1E8.

If you live outside the toll-free region but in northern Alberta, call toll-free 1-800-232-1966.

The law allows up to 90 days after the date on the taxpayer's first notice of assessment for filing a notice of objection.

A taxpayer, having filed out a notice of objection within the 90 days, and who is entitled to an adjustment, has up to four years from the date of the original notice of assessment to request the adjustment to his return.

About a million taxpayer-requested adjustments arise yearly from new information given to the department by taxpayers.

Singsong happens April 24th

By Edith Norquay

A sing-song took place April 10 at the Shangri-La Lodge. Floyd Crawford and Florence and their daughter Lee-Anne from Edmonton and Betty Christensen were there. Lee-Ann played the piano and sang some songs.

Bea Cropley's granddaughter, Ellen Davidson from Spruce Grove, will be the guest April 24 for the sing-song.

Six tables were in play at the April 11 crib game. High for ladies was Edna Langer. Low was Agnes May. High for the men was Harry Tweedle and low was Curtis Fagervold.

Eight tables were in play for whist April 14. High for the ladies was a tie between Hilda Dusterhoft and Natalie Kruger. Low for ladies was Bertha Simpson. High for the men was Bill Kruger and low was a tie between Mike Mandriak and Cal Bartlett.

Sympathy is extended to friends and relations of Walter Zanewicz.

Fred Cherrington, Mrs. Len Kaye, Ed Hines and Emil Jonas are all hospital patients.

Trim hedges and bushes to increase growth

By Joanne Bongar

The moon is in second quarter and Cancer. This is the perfect time for planting above-ground plants in hot beds and sheltered spots. Cancer is the most productive sign of all in which to plant

Water house plants and start new slips.

You are most gullible now so resist salesmen with magic herbicides or fertilizers.

April 21 and 22 the moon will be in the hot, dry, barren fire sign of Leo. This is the time to kill weeds and insect pests. Work at preparing the soil but don't plant anything

Farmers can dock or dehorn animals.

Restless folks can travel and party away from home.

Beauty treatments are favored now, and sophistication is the rule of the day during this kingly sign.

April 23 and 24 the moon will be in Virgo, another barren sign and equally unsuitable for planting. Work at roteilling and applying chemicals to eliminate disease and weeds

Write and mail letters and stock up on health foods for yourself and your animals.

If you want to enter into a partnership, have the formal agreement written up now.

New jobs, new looks and new studies are favored.

Begin sewing a new summer wardrobe if you're handy with a needle.

April 25 and 26 we will be in the harmonious sign of Libra and in second quarter, almost at full moon. This is the last chance to plant seeds that bear above ground. Plant now or wait for May 12.

Especially favored are flowers and decorative plants, vines and hay crops.

Trim hedges and bushes to increase growth.

Also have your hair cut if you want it to grow back thicker and shear sheep if even better fleece is your goal.

Throw a party or join a club. Do beautification projects.

Whose Lucky Week Is It?

The lucky time for speculation for Sagittarius ends April 20. The new lucky sign is Capricorn with birthdays between Dec. 31 and Jan. 6 the very luckiest until April 27.

The lucky number to remember is two, which is achieved by adding together the Celestial number of eight, and that of your ruling planet, Saturn, which is three. The two add up to 11, which is reduced to a single digit—thus, one plus one is two.

Important Days This Week

All post office fans will be happy to celebrate the 132nd anniversary of the first Canadian stamp. This joyful celebration occurs April 23.

Illness claims longtime resident

By Alice Grant
727-3816

Funeral service was held April 11 at the Entwistle Community Church for Arthur Eugene Gay of Evansburg. Mr. Gay died April 7 after a lengthy illness.

Rev. Cecil Cowie officiated at the service and Wilma Tuffy was organist. Mr. Gay is survived by his daughter Donna Jones; three grandsons, Wayne, Todd and Cato, all of Fort St. John, B.C. He was predeceased by his wife Freada in 1976 and a daughter, Carol, in 1945.

Mr. Gay was born in Parsborough, Cumberland County, Bay of Fundy, Nova Scotia, March 16, 1899, the youngest of 13 children born to Joseph and Emma Gay. He was the last living member of the family.

He came west in 1911 with his parents. After working in Saskatchewan for 15 years, he came to Alberta where he worked in various places.

On Oct. 27, 1939, he married Freida Nesbitt in Edmonton. They had 37 years of married life together. They took up residence in Entwistle and later in 1961 were among the first to move into Sunshine Lodge in Evansburg.

Mrs. Gay died the following year and Art continued to make his home there

Art was always a sports-minded person, coaching ball teams in Entwistle for 10 years and a peewee hockey team for a season. In 1980 and 1982 he participated in the Alberta Seniors' Games in Camrose in the croquet events.

He was a member of Heritage House Society and faithfully attended cribbage games every second Friday. He was a member of the Entwistle Elks Lodge for 12 years and a member of the Double E-E Lions Club.

Pallbearers were all brother Elks—Norman Hanson, Jerry Pehrsson, George Bullock, Dave Gylander, Tom Thoreus and Lawrence Anderson. Burial was in the Entwistle cemetery.

The United Church Women held a meeting March 21 in the Evansburg United Church basement with six members present. Plans were finalized for the spring rummage sale, to be held April 30. The hostess prize was won by Glwyn Anderson. The next meeting will be held April 25 at 2 p.m. with Gladys Schroder as hostess.

John Wilson celebrated his 80th birthday April 12. He was born in Proton Station, Ont., in [illegible]

In 1910 he came west to Macklin, Sask., where he lived until 1924. After working in areas around Edmonton, he homesteaded at Collyne, north of Evansburg, and farmed there for a number of [illegible]

In 1930 he married the former Hazel Ellis. They raised eight children. Hazel died suddenly in [illegible]

In 1950 John quit farming and moved to Wildwood where he worked in construction for 10 years. He retired in 1969 and moved to Evansburg in 1971.

In October, 1971, he married the former Stella Mattice and has lived here since. John has been a Lion member for the past 15 years, at Mayerthorpe and the Double E-E Lions at Evansburg. He is an active member of Heritage House Society.

His family hosted open house April 9 at Heritage House. After a family dinner many friends and neighbors called to wish John well.

On behalf of the seniors from Heritage House and Sunshine Lodge, Dr. T. Baker presented John with a birthday cake and a wallet.

Local hockey player competes in Arizona

By Bernice Johnson
388-3963

Shawn Russell of Alder Flats, a hockey player for the Rocky Bantam Bs, travelled to Phoenix, Arizona, along with the Rocky Mountain House team, his mother Sheila, sisters Samantha and Tammy and 15 or so other parents for a hockey tournament held there March 30 to April 3, which they won.

There were three Alberta teams participating, including themselves. Their games were against Omaha, Nebraska; Avarda, Colorado; Phoenix, Arizona; and Edmonton and Red Deer.

Sympathy is extended to Myrtle Capaniuk and family on the death April 12 of her mother, Bertha Dux of Wetaskiwin. Mrs. Dux and her son Archie lived in this area in the 1920s, on the place where the Borie family now resides.

Katie Forchuk of Edmonton spent two weeks visiting with Julia Chapchuk. One of these two weeks was spent with Julia's daughter Bernice and Dave Leslie of Penhold during Easter.

The Red Cross campaign exceeded expectations here this year, collecting a total of $827.25.

Rev. Ken England and his wife Dorothy of Durban, Man., arrived at the Pete Maciborsky home April 9 where they were overnight guests and Sunday Ken preached the sermon at the Covenant Church. A pot luck dinner followed the service.

Blayne Johnson spent a couple weeks at home with his parents, arriving from a year's stay in Hawaii. He left here April 12 for White Rock, B.C., to spend the summer on a salmon fishing boat.

Dexter Johnson and Kip Hanna became engaged Feb. 19 and have set their wedding date for July 10.

The senior citizens had six tables filled for a card party April 18. Eleanor Danyluk and Anne Capaniuk tied for high for the ladies while Ethel Seely settled for low. Clara Parker claimed high in the men's division and Gene Seely took low.

Freak accident claims victim

By Edith Doby
542-5451

May and Nick Urchyshyn, now of Summerland, B.C., were in town last week to attend the funeral of Rose Jevne.

Alfred Madsen recently suffered a stroke. After a few days in hospital he is convalescing at Shangri-La Lodge.

Ethel Hill was the victim of a freak accident recently. Her garage is built on a slight incline and when she stopped in front to open the door the car slipped out of gear. She reached in to stop it, but lost her footing and fell beneath the wheels with the result that she suffered a dislocated shoulder and a broken leg. After a few days in hospital she was taken to Calgary to convalesce at her daughter's home.

Alice Haggerty's grandson, Ian Campbell of Stettler, lived for only a short time after a truck he was repairing on the weekend fell on him.

New school mill rate announced

Education minister David King recently announced a 1983 mill rate of 14.1 mills for the School Foundation Program Fund (SFPF). This new rate reflects a decrease of 1.5 mills over the previous rate of 15.6 mills. The SFPF mill rate applies only to commercial and industrial property.

The 1983 adjustment was made in order to offset increases in equalized assessment which forms the SFPF tax base.

These increases have been exaggerated by the effect of inflation in increasing both building replacement costs and market value of land.

In the absence of the mill rate adjustment the average increase in the SFPF tax bill for owners of commercial and industrial property would have been 15 per cent. With the mill rate adjustment the average increase will be between three and four per cent.

Increases will vary from this average according to increases in equalized assessment in the municipality.

The SFPF is a fund from which grants are paid to school boards by Alberta Education to provide basic instruction, transportation and school construction.

The SFPF mill rate produces approximately 16 per cent of the revenue for the SFPF. The remaining 84 per cent is obtained through a legislative appropriation from general revenues of the province.

"The announcement of this mill rate should enable municipalities to finalise their 1983 total mill rates for commercial and industrial property," King said.

Agricultural meat research benefits producers

Consumers may soon benefit from receiving meat products of improved bacterial quality due to research done at the University of Alberta under an Agriculture Canada contract to the Lacombe Research Station.

The introduction of harmful bacteria to meats through contact with meat handlers constitutes a major source of contamination. Until now there has been little existing information concerning the efficacy of a number of germicides in controlling these bacteria.

To further compound the problem, hexachlorophene, one of the most common germicides in recent years, has declined in use due to toxicological implications of its phenol make-up.

However, university researcher Dr. Michael Stiles recently completed phase two of a study begun in 1980 which has established the most effective germicide, immediate and residual effects of germicidal hand washes, and effects of germicide concentrations in hygienic hand disinfectant.

The work was done under the scientific authority of Lacombe meats microbiologist, Dr. Gordon Greer.

Tests were conducted using the natural flora from the hands of laboratory workers, or the organisms Pseudomonas and E. Coli.

The hand washes were tested for both immediate effectiveness as well as substantive or cumulative effects. Samples were collected on culture plates before and after the first and sixth of 16 successive washes, before each intermediate wash, and finally without further treatment; the morning after the wash had been completed.

The results of these tests showed that only two of the commercial hand wash agents had both an immediate and cumulative effect as a germicide.

These were a four per cent chlorhexidine gluconate known as Hibitane produced by Ayerst Laboratories of Montreal, and an iodophor scrub containing .75 per cent iodine produced by West Chemical Products Canada Ltd. of Montreal.

A third scrub containing .005 per cent iodine showed promise because of advantages over the stronger iodine scrub in reduced stain and odor, but Stiles feels more study is needed before it can be recommended.

"On the basis of these findings it should be possible to make recommendations to the meat industry relative to the most effective means of disinfecting the hands of food handlers," said Greer. "The ultimate result should become realized in meat products of superior bacterial quality."

The third phase of the study proposed to study the efficacy of lower concentrations of chlorhexidine gluconate or iodine in hand scrubs.

Oil wives plan dance

Oil Wives held a friendship night April 11 with 76 members and two guests present.

It was Big Sister, Little Sister night, so the oldtimers and newer members sat together for the evening.

Board member Peggy Metcalfe lit the friendship candle, which burned throughout the meeting as a reminder of the club's motto—To foster friendship.

Metcalfe agreed to run for a position on the board again.

Betty Christensen, Trudy Kjerlien and Linda Polzies are new members.

Sharon Heyland, a color analyst, gave a talk on the magic of colors.

The next executive meeting will be held May 3 at the home of Carolyn Ness. Heather Moe, Rhonda Kelso and Ruth Cooper will be guests.

A Hawaiian silver jubilee dance will be held April 23. Tickets are available from any Oil Wives member.

A garage sale is planned for May 15 at the Scout Hall.

Members are urged to consider running for an executive position, as the club would like two slates. Anyone interested should contact La Taylor.

Safety a concern

Safety, like the weather, is seasonal. The Home Safety Committee of the Alberta Safety Council touches on some of the safety concerns which may be confronted in and around the home during this spring season.

Falls, both inside and outside the home, result in many painful injuries each year. Avoid standing on flimsy chairs, boxes or stools while house cleaning and storing winter things. The same rule applies outside. Use only sound ladders and stands when cleaning or removing windows, painting or trimming trees or tall shrubs.

Fires occur in every season. Spring is the time of grass and rubbish fires. Make sure you have the means to fight an open fire readily available.

Proper tools, both power and manual, in good condition, are the key to safe and rewarding times in the garden and on the lawn. One should be totally familiar with power equipment, either gasoline or electric, before using it. Power lawnmowers, especially, have been the cause of many serious mishaps.

Pesticides and herbicides must be used according to directions and always kept out of the reach of children. Proper storage and disposal of these harmful substances are most important.

Consider spring house cleaning a good time to get rid of old and outdated prescription drugs, poisons and any household products that have an expiry date. Always follow directions on containers as some contents are harmful to one's health when over-exposure occurs.

Addition promises vocation

Frank Maddock High School students will soon be able to receive the same vocational training as students in major cities.

"In terms of the community our kids are going to have the same opportunities as the kids in the city," said Alan Day, vice-principal at Frank Maddock.

"More and more students are finding a trade is much more advantageous in terms of finding employment," said Jim Wolff, student counsellor at Frank Maddock.

Students look at a trade or a technical school because it offers them specific job training in a shorter period of time, he added.

It takes an average of 16 years before a university graduate will reach economic parity and start to pull ahead compared to students who have entered the work force with a trade or technical education, said Wolff, noting the statistic was one he worked out himself a few years ago.

The trend now is toward job skills, not academics. There are a larger number of students looking at NAIT or SAIT each year as the place to further their education, Day said.

"Frank Maddock High School vocational program will meet the needs of a variety of students," said Dr. Leroy Sloan, assistant superintendent of schools for area one (acting). Some students will have a goal of an apprenticeship program in a particular area and students who successfully complete their program could challenge the first year apprenticeship examination, Sloan added.

Initial work is also being done to access provincial funding for an academic occupational program. If the county is successful in obtaining the grant, students who might normally drop out at the end of Grade 9 would benefit from this program. Such a program would offer students an opportunity to acquire both academic and vocational skills, Sloan said.

Frank Maddock will be basically offering three different programs. The first, explained Day, is an apprenticeship program and the second is an academic vocational program. It offers them a chance to pick up academic and job related skills. "For example, a student would learn the math applicable to the building construction industry."

The third program would be student interest courses, Day said.

"I think it will give non-academic students a chance of picking up the beginning of a trade or a type of training that will help them get into the work force," said Tom Hutton, vice-principal at H.W. Pickup Junior High School.

The students in the transition room have some learning difficulties, Hutton said. The most common problem is reading, he said. Most of the students selected for the transition room read below the normal level. These students would benefit by a vocational program, he added.

In two other county schools which are now offering vocational programs many academically talented students are entering the program, Sloan said.

The vocational wing was started in October, 1982, and when completed in June of this year will enable students to receive instruction in a variety of vocational classes, said Day.

The 9,007 square metre building will house a four-bay automotive workshop, a welding shop, a building construction shop and a music room, said Peter Germaniuk, co-ordinator of school construction.

Two rooms in Frank Maddock are also in the process of being renovated to provide a beauty culture course, he added.

The Drayton Valley area did not meet the recommended enrolment levels of 700 for the vocational addition, but the county felt there was a definite need in the area, Day said.

Besides the approximate $2 million being spent on the physical structure, the county is pouring in another $600,000 into equipment for the shops.

Such equipment will include hoists, cranes, a hydraulic press, tire spreaders, tire changers, hand tools, welders (both arc and acetylene), band saws, table saws, lathes, hair dryers, manicure tables and a variety of other tools.

The county received sizable grants from the provincial government Department of Education building branch to construct the addition, said Sloan.

Wall washing hints

By Janice McGregor

Before resorting to bucket and cloth for cleaning walls, ask at a local hardware store for a dry sponge.

Unlike regular sponges, they are sealed in plastic bags, and are dense and soft. They are especially made for drycleaning walls.

Use until all sponge surfaces are black, then discard. These sponges do not clean in water.

Before washing walls, gather the following tools:

- one empty bucket;
- one bucket half-full of warm water and cleaning solution;
- use 250 mL of ammonia to 4 L of water or;
- use 2 mL trisodium phosphate (TSP) to 4 L of water;
- an ordinary cellulose sponge,
- three or four cleaning cloths. Cut terry towel into 45 cm x 45 cm. Fold and sew along one side. Leave it open at both ends.

Dip sponge one-quarter way into solution. Wet a 90 cm x 90 cm area of wall surface at a time. Start at the top of the wall unless the walls are very dirty.

Quickly cover area with solution from the sponge. Don't squeeze it on. Go over surface again with sponge. Wipe clean with cleaning cloth.

Hold sponge over empty bucket and squeeze dirty solution out of sponge. Dip sponge into clean solution and go to work again.

When cleaning enamel painted surfaces keep the cleaning cloths drier and cleaner for buffing the walls

Leave marks and spots that don't come clean and come back later. Try to remove the marks by rubbing hard with the cleaning solution. If this doesn't work, try using a solvent for the particular stain. Toothpaste is also useful for removing stubborn stains.

On panelling apply a mild vegetable oil, soap or neutral cleaner sparingly with a sponge. Dry buff with a cleaning cloth with the grain of the panelling.

Student wants to keep more dogs

Christine Hanley secretly wishes her parents won't find a home for one of the two puppies left in her dog's litter.

"Jessie is a good cattle dog," said Christine, a Grade 9 student at St. Anthony School. Jessie had three pups in her litter, but one of them was already given away, she said.

Besides the three dogs, Christine has two horses and five cats. Only two of the cats have names, she said. One is called Scamp and the other is called Tiger. The other three are quite wild, she said.

The two horses they own are called Lady and Major. "Major is my dad's horse, but my dad doesn't ride him," she said.

Lady is her mother's horse, she added.

Christine sometimes has the chores of feeding the calves on her farm near Tomahawk. "But I only feed one because it is pretty tame. The other one knocks me over trying to get to the milk," she said.

Christine Hanley likes to collect tadpoles.

She is looking forward to summer so she can go out and collect tadpoles. She says she keeps them until they turn into frogs, but most of them die.

Christine was in her gym class when she was interrupted to be interviewed as this week's student at random.

Christine said she and her best friend Sheila Hanson were practicing their gymnastics routine for the upcoming talent show at St. Anthony School.

Math and art are her favorite subjects, she said. Right now in math she is doing division and the time table. In art class, Christine says the class is making paper vases and putting pussy willows in them.

Board members rethink plans

Parkland County has decided to rethink its long range plans for micro-computers in schools.

School trustees agreed last week to establish a new plan for implementation of the machines, cut short this term by a reduction of funds allocated.

Curriculum director Peggy Bevan said last week the original program was drafted almost two years ago and included a "fairly hefty price tag."

Some schools found funds alloted to computers had dried up just when they were about to buy machines.

But the new plan will address more than just the number of machines and their price, she said.

In addition it should include recommendations on levels of literacy, target populations and other goals.

An critical of budget considerations is the directions of computer schools, she explained.

Complex questions which must be answered include whether to emphasize overall literacy, use the computer to assist learning in classes, or different methods.

Two years ago teacher computer literacy was a top priority, Bevan said. Now that many teachers have achieved some computer literacy, the county must take the next step.

Parkland, like other school districts, has been waiting for some direction from the province and some recommendations are expected in the future, she says.

Still many schools are far ahead of others, both in equipment and in overall literacy of students.

Current financial pressures mean fewer machines can be put into schools than had been previously hoped, Bevan said. Indeed, what portion of the 1983 budget is still unknown.

Individual school budgets don't have much extra capacity for computers, as machine procurement is usually left up to local fund raising schemes.

Bevan expects the new plan should be ready by the end of June, when the budget will likely be known.

Many students are "flying ahead" in their skills, making it difficult to determine what the average need is, or what number of machines is adequate

Lemons help remove unwanted wrinkles

By Linda Giroux

Spring is here, but it will be a few more weeks before many green plants are up. In the meantime, stores can be ready suppliers of useful herbal remedies. Fresh lemons can be used for more than flavoring for fish, in lemon pies and making lemonade.

Being a citrus fruit, lemons are a good source of Vitamin C. The need for Vitamin C cannot be over-emphasized. In one study done on senile patients, they were all found to be pathologically short of Vitamin C. Smokers need extra Vitamin C, because one cigarette destroys 25 mg of Vitamin C. One tablespoon of lemon juice contains only seven mg of Vitamin C.

Lemons are probably most often associated with coughs and colds since they are used in preparing hot lemonade, or in lemon and honey gargle to ease a sore throat.

For coughs and colds, roasted lemon can also be used. A whole lemon is roasted in a moderate oven until the skin begins to crack, usually about half an hour. Take one tablespoonful of the juice before each meal and before retiring at night. It can be sweetened with honey if desired.

For asthma, the juice of fresh lemons can be taken before each meal and before going to bed at night.

For heartburn, try a half tablespoon of lemon juice diluted with a little water.

For corns, bind on a lemon slice overnight.

For warts, try soaking a lemon rind in vinegar for 24 hours. Bind onto the wart for up to four hours. Change the rind every day.

Lemons are also used as beauty aids. For the hair, a lemon rinse removes soap film. Use the juice of one lemon to a quart of water. For dandruff, rub lemon juice into the scalp before shampooing. Lemon juice applied to the hair before going out into sunlight has a bleaching effect for blonde hair.

Lemon juice can be used to remove stains on the hands. Just dip a slice of lemon in peroxide, and rub over the fingers.

To whiten and soften the skin of the hands and face, try a lemon milk preparation. Cover a slice of lemon with milk. Let stand for two hours, then strain, and apply the preparation. Allow to dry, then rinse off.

Because of its astringent action, lemon juice can be rubbed over wrinkles as an aid to removing them. Allow the juice to dry on the skin, then remove with olive oil.

For a skin lotion made with lemon juice, mix one ounce of lemon juice with three ounces of rose water, and one ounce of glycerine. Apply to face or hands.

Lemon juice, sprinkled over bananas or apple slices, will prevent them from turning brown.

Frequent application of lemon juice is said to remove ink, rust or mildew stains from cloth. Some recipes call for the addition of milk or salt. In using salt, make a paste from salt and lemon juice, apply to the rust stain, and let sit for half an hour or more. Rinse out, and hang in the sun to dry.

Few cutbacks projected in people programs

By Geoff White and Sheila Pratt

The provincial government had some bad news for Albertans in a series of budget-related announcements made to the legislature.

The province's municipalities, users of hospital and doctors' services and people on welfare will all feel the pinch of a budget in which spending restraint is the top priority.

Municipal Affairs minister Julian Koziak cancelled an interest-shielding plan that protected municipalities against rates in excess of 11 per cent.

The plan had just become too expensive for the province, Koziak said, noting that the province is committed to $1.7 billion in interest subsidies over the next 25 years.

The minister contended doing away with the program will cause little hardship for municipalities' building plans providing market interest rates don't rise again.

Hospitals minister Dave Russell told the house that after Oct. 1 hospitals will be allowed to charge user fees up to $30 a day.

His announcement followed fast on the heels of the 50 per cent increase in medicare premiums detailed in the budget.

These decisions set the stage for a confrontation with Ottawa which has threatened to cut its contribution of $415 million to the Alberta health care system if the province doesn't eliminate user charges and premiums.

Social Services minister Neil Webber announced that the government will try to save $40 to $50 million by reducing shelter aid for welfare recipients, as well as making several other cuts in social allowances.

Webber justified the shelter reductions by arguing that rental vacancy rates have increased in most of the province and cheaper deals should be available for welfare renters.

The minister has refused to call his moves "cuts," preferring to call them "modifications and adjustments."

In his budget address, Provincial Treasurer Lou Hyndman had said there will be "no cutbacks in the dollar funding of any people programs."

Technically, he may be correct. Neither the hospitals, social services nor education departments received any less money than was budgeted for them last year.

But Hyndman admits "there may well be variations within .. and reductions in the eligibility for various services."

Grass fires pose a real threat

Local firefighters may not be able to respond to some grass fires this year, Parkland County council has warned.

Volunteer manpower shortages and financial pressures mean some grass fires may not be attended.

Parkland is also considering charging more people for setting fires without permits or setting fires where fires are not allowed.

Councillors agreed to place large advertisements in local newspapers warning people of the increased hazards and possible inability to attend all fires.

Parkland Fire Chief Ray Saunders said at last week's council meeting he would welcome a charge for grass fires, and several councillors said they would agree.

Financial pressures on local businesses have meant a cutback on the number of men.

Provincial oil exploration started in 1913

By John Gorman

The process of mapping and defining the extent of Alberta's oil sands really began in 1913 when Dr. Sidney Ells of Ottawa was assigned by the federal government to investigate the potential of the vast bituminous deposits.

It was also Ells who was able to debunk the theory that the source of oil in the oil sands was a free standing pool of crude oil that had so far eluded a good many fortune seekers.

Ells and his group, on assignment from the Geological Survey of Canada, determined that the oil was dispersed through a layer of sand which covered a very large undetermined area. While the sand carried large quantities of bitumen or heavy raw crude oil, it would have to be recovered by some means other than drilling and pumping.

For more than 50 years, Ells probed and studied the mysteries of the oil sands. Under adverse conditions, he co-ordinated drilling and digging operations in the muskeg and mosquito infested northern wilderness.

Transportation in and out of Fort McMurray in 1913 consisted of dog teams in the winter and foot-slogging in the summer. One of the most difficult jobs for Ells' work was moving cumbersome drilling and mining equipment from one location to another. It was also a back breaking task to move the samples of bitumen from Athabasca to the railhead at Edmonton where they could be shipped back to Ottawa for laboratory analysis.

During the summer months, he moved men and equipment up and down the Athabasca and Clearwater Rivers on a scow. To go against the current, teams of men on shore shouldered tow lines and pulled the vessel upstream.

As Ells gained a better understanding of the immense petroleum potential of the oil sands, a revolution of another type was taking place in North America. By the end of World War One, the motor car, the airplane and other vehicles powered by the internal combustion engine were becoming vital factors in the rapidly developing North American economy.

By 1920, Ells had convinced the federal government that the oil sands be considered solely for their petroleum value. Stricter controls on leasing, claims staking and sale of lands in the area were instituted.

A method of separating the oil from the sand had yet to be perfected, and up to that time the only commercial value for the sands was in experimental paving projects in Alberta.

Illegal hunting nets fines

The government of Alberta is concerned about the increasing number of illegal hunting activities in the province, according to Don Sparrow, associate minister of Public Lands and Wildlife. He encourages Albertans to notify the nearest Fish and Wildlife office of any illegal or suspicious hunting activities.

Albertans can expect to receive fines of between $50 and $1,000 for illegal possession of wildlife or for hunting out of season. Default of payment will mean three months in jail.

The offence of trafficking in wildlife will bring a penalty of $100 to $1,500 or six months in jail. These fines are intended to be reviewed by the government within the current review of the Wildlife Act.

"These activities have a very negative impact on our fish and wildlife resource," said Sparrow. "This illegal activity should not shed a negative light on the use of wildlife by the legal hunter, who contributes positively to the management of this resource."

The government of Alberta sponsors an Outdoor Observer Program and the Rural Crime Watch Program, designed so that the general public can assist in spotting illegal hunting activities.

Anyone interested in participating in the Outdoor Observer Program and the Rural Crime Watch Program can do so by contacting their local Fish and Wildlife office or RCMP detachment.

Grooming clinic planned

By Candace Alguire
Regional 4-H Specialist

The average 4-H leader spends two to eight hours per week on 4-H; uses too many tanks of gas to keep track of going to meetings, and likely more than once, has gone through frustration sorting out problems within the club or council.

There are as many reasons for volunteer work as there are volunteers. Whatever the reason, volunteers are needed. April 18 to 24 is National Volunteer Week. It's an opportunity to express thanks to a special volunteer. Recognition is always appreciated and is a great motivator.

As one way of saying thank you, as well as providing a training experience for 4-H leaders, the 4-H branch sponsors leaders to attend a wide variety of programs across Canada and the United States.

These programs include Montana 4-H Congress, Northwest Territories Northern Development Tour, Agribition in Regina and more.

Twenty-eight Alberta delegates will be selected this year.

More information on these programs, along with application procedure, is available in the 1983 Provincial 4-H Summer Programs Booklet.

A light horse grooming and showmanship clinic will be held Saturday, April 30 from 1:30 to 4 p.m. at the Rice farm, five miles north of the Stony Plain overpass on Meridian Road. Cost will be $5 per person and the instructor is Laverne Rice.

A beef judging workshop will take place Saturday, April 23 from 10:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Ken Lewis farm. For more information contact the 4-H office at 674-8248.

Highway clean-up is scheduled for May 7. Clubs must register by April 20.

A rural youth seminar is planned for Tuesday, July 19 to Saturday, July 23 at Concordia College in Edmonton. For applications contact the Regional 4-H office at 674-8248.

What do you really want to do for the rest of your life?

If this question plagues you there are services available for anyone interested in changing jobs and those looking for jobs.

Julia Melnyk, a career counsellor, is working out of the Edmonton branch of the Career Centre and comes to the Education Consortium office in Drayton Valley once every two weeks.

The government-funded program works strictly with adults in Barrhead, Lodue, Whitecourt and their surrounding areas.

"Basically we serve people within a 25 km (15 mile) radius," Melnyk said. The service is for everyone.

The procedure for any person using the service is informal and Melnyk is available to answer any questions concerning career choices and/or changes.

"Strategy is important. The people have to know what they can expect before they go and apply for a job."

Model planes make model hobby

By Joe Poirier

On any given sunny summer weekend the sky over Mobil's paved airstrip is not only full of humming insects, but is also full of buzzing aircraft.

The Drayton Valley contingent of the Model Aeronautics Association of Canada fly their craft every chance they get and since they are the only club in the province with a paved strip, the members are very proud of it.

Jerry Kos, president of the Drayton Valley club, has been flying for about three years. When his four radio controlled helicopter and airplanes don't keep him busy in the repair shop his airworthy craft keep him occupied.

It's not just the vehicles that interest these enthusiasts but also the people. Like any craft, trade or hobby, the people are what makes life interesting. Folks from as close as Tomahawk and as far away as Rimbey were out April 17 to show their crafts and skills at flying.

One of the most interesting men to talk to was Gord Ehrenlechner, former Canadian champion of radio controlled helicopters. He drew the biggest crowd of interested bystanders and craft owners. When he arrived with his two model helicopters all the other plane handlers stopped to see a real pro in action.

Just like any of the other flyers, Ehrenlechner unpacked all the necessary equipment, fuel, parts and batteries. The only difference was all his gear was in one tidy mobile shop the size of a tool chest.

All around the hobby enthusiasts wound out their engines talked about similar problems and watched others at work. The constant buzzing kept everyone occupied for the entire afternoon.

The Drayton Valley club keeps people occupied all year too. Secretary-Treasurer Dan Baines and his club have scheduled a Fun Fly Aug. 13 and 14 to attract enthusiasts from all over the province. About 15 members fly in the area and Baines is an old hand with six years of experience.

The men will all tell you they're having fun but like many enjoyable pastimes there are a few dangers.

"There is a $2,000,000 insurance policy with the club," Kos said. "It can be dangerous at times."

Just looking at the planes flying overhead gives one an inkling of doubt about what makes the planes stay buzzing nearby and why there is smoke coming from them.

"The blue smoke trailing from behind means there is a perfect balance of mixture of 20 per cent Castrol Oil and 80 per cent methyl alcohol," Baines says assuredly.

Alberta is not the only province where people can enjoy this mixture of dedication and fun.

Sometimes the national championships are held in Ontario. Ehrenlechner plans to enter his choppers in a tournament in Kamloops.

Ehrenlechner recently lost his title to a man from Ontario but with a new craft in arm he hopes to have a contender in no time.

As long as the pride of the Alberta model Aeronautics Association keeps buzzing along there will never need to be worry for loss of interest.

The model and kit shows what is involved.
